LEADS is an innovative, transdisciplinary program designed to provide students in the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences with experiential learning opportunities to enhance personal and professional development and encourage creative problem solving. LEADS students develop into imaginative leaders, articulate communicators, and engaged citizens who are well-prepared for their future careers.

Are you interested in:

- Growing and developing confidence as a leader?
- Exploring a variety of perspectives on leadership and variables that influence leadership?
- Cultivating an entrepreneurial mindset?
- Creating your personalized professional and academic development plan?
- Using your creativity to contemplate solutions to global problems?
- Developing confidence as a writer and communicator?
- Learning what the LEADS program can offer you?

In the College of Liberal Arts & Sciences, you are more than just a student. Find out what opportunities await you through the LEADS Program.

Experience what LEADS has to offer by registering for a Fall 2019 class

CLAS 2600: LEADS Colloquium

CRN: 17661
Thursdays 1:00-2:15pm
1 credit hour
Open to all majors
No pre-requisites

New for Fall 2019: Explore who you are as a leader and a problem solver in the LEADS Colloquium course. This course provides a comprehensive overview to the key principles and values of the LEADS program and, in combination with additional LEADS courses, fulfills requirements for the brand new LEADS certificate program in Leadership, Innovation, Technology, and Diversity.

For more information: leads.uncc.edu or clas-leads@uncc.edu